24 Workshop has let the kids loose in the workroom this season, bringing in young designers Jae Mills and Emma Green to work on the Workshop Demin Summer 07/08 collection. Under the guidance of designer Chris Cherry, Mills and Green have injected a youthful energy into the collection. Mills, formerly of streetwear label Huffer, has brought in bold colours and graphic prints, while Green has added her own touch with plays on volume and distinctive silhouettes. We say the kids are all right with us! Available at Workshop stores in Auckland, Wellington and Christchurch, or check out www.workshopdenim.com

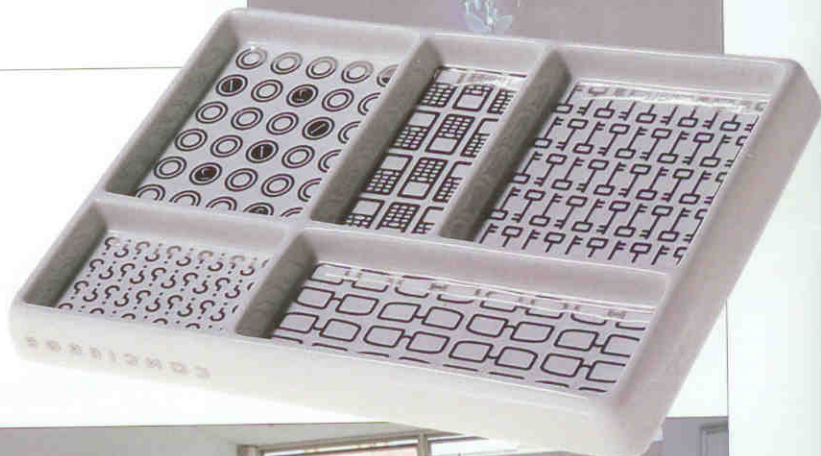

26 A deluge of delicate butterflies makes the new Niagara Chandelier by Lladro a hot favourite in the Urbis office right now. Fibre optic technology is combined with masterful porcelain work to create a magical light. For New Zealand and Australian stockists, see www.lladro.com

25 Amor Y Locura (Spanish for 'Love and Madness') is Melbourne's newest design store, specialising in architectural artifacts and furniture. This is no place for minimalists – in fact, it's the sort of store that would have John Pawson waking up in the middle of the night in a cold sweat. Glorious Louis XVI chairs, vintage birdcages, sweeping Art Nouveau chandeliers and quirky collectible dolls sit alongside custom re-design pieces like the pair of industrial aluminium lamps pictured. www.amorylocura.com

27 The perfect place for all your easily lost trinkets, the Seletti Concierge Tray comes in black or white. Each compartment has an identifying illustration - keys, glasses, rings or mystery baubles. www.zucca.co.nz

28 What does Quadfolium mean? We're not sure. It's a little like 'quadrifolium', the word for a four petalled-flower shape – but not exactly. At any rate, it's the name of Auckland's newest fashion store, located on Beresford Square. Run by three AUT design graduates, it stocks a mix of up and coming designers. So whatever the moniker means, it sounds blooming good to us.
